INTERESTING LECTURE ON THE ORIENT

Delivered at the Third Presbyterian Church on Sunday Evening by

MARY HALLECK BRADDOCK

A Returned Missionary-Tells of the Habits and Customs of the Peoples of the Far East.

At the Third Presbyterian church last evening, Mrs. Mary Halleck Braddock. of Steubenville, an East India missionary, who recently returned to America from the far east via China, delivered an interesting and instructive lecture on her travels. She gave some inter-esting facts concerning the habits and customs of the inhabitants of the Orient at the present day.

Mrs. Braddock began by inviting atestablished in India and assured her hearers that the natives fully realize the material aid that is being extended to them by the Americans. She then referred to her sojourn in China at the time she was on her way home to America. She spoke particularly the difficulties in one section of country, where hundreds of Christian missionaries had been massacred, and thought that everybody should be interested in China at present. However, she wished the congregation to not fora warm sense of sympathy for the suf-

She had seen the idol of the goddess of their imagination and which they worship. She was a giantess and as black as printer's ink could make her. Around her neck was a string of skulls, and around her limbs were circled the ugliest and vilest of reptiles.

In describing the horrible conse quences of the famine throughout the country she pointed out the fact that traffic is everywhere disarranged and every life is in danger. She was afterwards asked if the plague there is really as bad as is reported and would have to answer that man can only die and that it was really an utter impossibillty to fully present a word ploture of the suffering and distress among those "India really makes us." she continued, "believe and approve of things that we have hitherto thought impos sible or detested. Now I never did believe in wife-beating until I visited India. I heard one woman complaining to her husband that she had no bracelets, or rings or shining collars or belts to wear like those possessed by one of the native's wives, and when she was told by her husband that he could not afford to purchase such jewels for her she went into a fit of hysterics. The woman threw herself upon the ground. and after rolling around and pulling her hair, she ran to a well and jumped into it. She escaped uninjured in some manner, but it was indeed a wonder that she was not killed. Her husband pro cured a hand-bar switch and had to resort to beating her with it in order to pacify her. The women are not allowed to go out in public. It would be immodest for a Christian in that country to enjoy the same freedom in soclety as we do and the courtship is, of course, under difficulty."

She explained that the natives engaged themselves to each other by letter writing and that there was therefore vry little courting. She realized that those who contribute funds to the cause of mission work are always very anxlous to know just how the money is being expended and how the work is progressing. The natives are soon persuaded to wash their faces, wash their clothing and dress properly their children and send them to mission schools

Mrs. Braddock closed her address by briefly reviewing the excellent mission work that had been accomplished in India, especially during the past few years, and gave assurance that the Christian religion is able to reach the natives of that land.

AMUSEMENTS.

Probably no playwright is responsible for so many smiles as Charles Hoyt, author of "A Hole in the Ground," which comes to the Opera House next Monday evening. The scenes of the play are laid at a small railroad station in Vermont, where the thirty or more characters are congregated and compelled to remain because of the delay of a train by a hole in the ground, which in railroad parlance, means a wash-out. The typical folks of this region and the tyrannical train crew from the characters in the play. The officiousness of the train hands, the resentment of the passengers, the recklessness of the baggage smasher, the eccentric wit of a stranger, the ludicrous and always "Weary Willie," the amusing incidents for which the lunch counter girl is responsible and a host of pretty female passengers and commercial travellers all contribute their portion in the great festival of fun. The various characters are in the hands of exceedingly clever performers, in fact, the cast is said to be the strongest and most versatile ever seen in a Hoyt offering. Especial stress being laid upon the beauty of the dozen or more girls, the catchiness of the many vocal num bers offered and the incidental specialties. Hoyt's plays are well liked by theatre-goers of this city, and that "A Hole in the Ground" will call out a large and fashionable audience is evidenced by the already brisk demand for seats in advance.

Everything New and Bright. Primrose & Dockstader realize that those who cater to the public in minstrelsy must have something new and decidedly attractive. This announcement is frequently found to be mean ingless when the show materializes But in the case of the famous men who have joined their fortunes to increase them, if possible, they are fully aware that public disappointment for them means unpopularity and loss of patronage, merit and dollars, which they do not care to invite. This season Primrose & Dockstader Minstreis which come to the Opera House, or Tuesday, October 23, is a combination of beauty, merit and high artistic cellence that is better than its promises. Everybody knows that men of such long experience and of such bright minds and original ideas as those possessed by Primrose and Dockstader are eminently calculated to materialize something pleasing. They know what people want. They realize that the of to-day must present something pleasing. They know what people want. They realize that the minstrelsy of to-day must present something entirely new and original in fun and sentiment or it will not take They have gone to great expense in making this season's entertainment something distinctly new and original, promise that no disappoint ment will come. The great first part scene alone is bewilderingly beautiful and impressive. There are no gewgaws or cheap tinsel. The accessories are costly and artistic. The jokes, dances, songs and monologues are bright, witty and very funny. In fact laughter reigns from start to finish.

Modjeska. The appearance of Madame Modjeska at the Opera House, on Friday evening, in the play of "Macbeth," has been generally looked upon as the most distinctive feature of the present theatric al season. Her great fame as the leading tragic actress of the period would alone warrant such an attitude, apart from the fact that she is now making her farewell tour of the United States. She has been associated of this country for twenty years and to say that her influence, both artistic and exemplary will be sorely missed but mildly expresses the services she has rendered. She has dignified her profession not only for her genius, but by her personal charm and worth as : woman. It is to women such as Mad-ame Modjeska that the theatrical profession owes its emancipation from so much of the old time prejudice against it, as an honorable calling. Among the players who will assist her are such well known pecple as R. D. MacLean and Odette Tyler, who were seen here last season, in "Phroso," as stars a the head of their own company.

Isham's Octoroons.

A large company of forty people everyone of which is a vocalist, and as such takes some part in the chorus singing during each evening's enter-tainment, will be the offering which Manager John W. Isham introduces to our theatre-going public at the Grand Opera House, the last half of this week. But besides being a company of such

RHEUMATISM

As experience stands, the most promising way to treat an old settled rheumatism is: to set up the general health.

Whatever makes health, in other respects, is good for rheumatism.

We don't say it will cure it. Sometimes it does; sometimes it don't. Your chance is better with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil than with anything else now By and by there will be a sure cure; it will make a big noise in the world when it comes.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.

musical ability, they will provide an entertainment that has many features to please-from first class comedy to dramatic acts. The olio contains several numbers that are pretty enough to please the most critical, the choice of which may be considered "The Opera Portion," which with its handsom scenic environments and wonderful electrical effects, is a gem. This company has won universal commendation from both press and public in every large city where it has played. The Octoroons played Manison Square Roof Garden, New York City, all summer.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin."

A treat is in store for lovers of that everlasting success, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which comes to the Grand, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It will be presented by Al. W. Martin's big company of sixty white and colored people, and with thousands of dollars worth of beautiful scenery and effects. Over fifty people are utilized in the production, and the cast is in the hands of competent actors. Every stick of scenery used from the rise to the fall of the curtain is carried by the company, and several of the settings are worthy of more than passing comment. The transformation entitled "The Celes-tial City," is said to be the most magnificent tableau ever conceived.

MARTIN'S FERRY NEWS.

The Daily Chronicle of Wheeling's Progressive Neighbor.

It is thought by the Martin's Ferr high school team that the greatest gang of squediers in the country is located at Moundeville. The local team early last week arranged with the high school team of that city for a game at that place Saturday afternoon. The locals secured a wagon and drove to that city, only to find the worst set of "knockers" to be found anywhere. They claimed all sorts of things; first, tha they had arranged no game with the team of this place, but when the cap-tain of this city's team produced three letters from their captain, other methods to knock out the game were em-ployed. It is a safe bet that the local team will steer shy of Moundsville in the future.
